Management Discussion of Fund Performance

Investment Objectives and Strategies

PIMCO Managed Conservative Bond Pool ("the Fund") seeks to maximize total return, consistent with preservation of capital and prudent investment management.

In order to achieve its objectives, the Fund invests primarily in mutual funds managed by PIMCO Canada, emphasizing mutual funds that invest in fixed-income securities.

Risk

No changes affecting the overall risk associated with investing in the Fund were made during the period. The risks of investing in the Fund remain as outlined in the Fund's most recent Simplified Prospectus. Accordingly, the Fund remains suitable for the same investors outlined in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

Series A units of the Fund returned 2.28%, net of fees, during the 6-month reporting period ending June 30, 2023. The Fund's benchmark, the Bloomberg Barclays Global Aggregate 1-3 Year Index (CAD-Hedged), returned 1.52% during the same reporting period. The net returns of the other series of units of the Fund are similar to those of Series A, except for the expense structure differences.

The following market conditions were prevalent during the six-month reporting period.

In Q1, the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank ("SVB") and subsequent merger between UBS and Credit Suisse took center stage. Shockwaves reverberated through markets following the failure of SVB, with the 2-year Treasury posting its largest three-day slide since 1987 as investors flocked to quality. Volatility remained elevated as the market's confidence in Credit Suisse deteriorated and the Swiss National Bank orchestrated its takeover by UBS. Stock indices fell and bond yields rallied globally as concerns of financial contagion dampened risk sentiment.

Despite exceeding expectations, inflation data continued to cool, spurring mixed market reactions.

Instability in the financial sector and broadly cooling inflation led investors to revise their expectations for central bank rate hikes as a sharp pullback in bank lending may slow the economy. The Federal Reserve delivered two 25 bps hikes over the quarter, including one in March despite heightened volatility. The central bank also revised its forward guidance for rates, softening its commitment to future hikes while maintaining the same 5.1% terminal rate projection from December. The Bank of England also raised policy rates twice over the quarter (+50 and +25 bps, respectively), and markets are now pricing in that the central bank will hike just once more as inflation has likely peaked. Similar to the U.S. and U.K., the European Central Bank raised policy rates twice (each time +50 bps); however, the central bank has signaled that it will continue to raise policy rates to lower core inflation.

In Q2, concerns over a possible U.S. debt default prompted yields on short-dated Treasury bills to exceed 5.3%, and the cost of 1-year U.S. Treasury default swaps reached an all-time high. Risk sentiment remained robust, however, as markets were optimistic about negotiations. The S&P 500 hit a 9-month high after the House of Representatives passed a bill to raise the debt ceiling, which then passed through the Senate without much excitement from markets.

Signs of easing inflation prompted the Fed to offer dovish rhetoric earlier in the quarter; however, resilient growth and a swifter-than-expected resolution of stresses within the banking sector caused the Fed to signal that at least two additional rate hikes will be needed to combat inflation. U.S. headline inflation continued its decline over the quarter, rising at a 4% annual pace in May, which was the lowest reading in over two years. However, core inflation remained stubbornly high as much of the inflationary decline has been due to easing fuel and energy prices. Growth and inflation metrics have begun to diverge, prompting central banks to take different paths. The Federal Reserve hiked its policy rate once (+25 bps) before pausing in June, only to then signal that at least two additional hikes will be needed to combat inflation.

Against this backdrop, the Fund's global interest rate exposure, obtained primarily through the PIMCO Flexible Global Bond Fund (Canada) and PIMCO Canadian Total Return Bond Fund, was a detractor from performance as global front-end rates rose during the reporting period. Exposure to securitized credit, gained primarily through allocations to PIMCO Global Short Maturity Fund (Canada), PIMCO Low Duration Monthly Income Fund (Canada), PIMCO Monthly Income Fund (Canada), and PIMCO Unconstrained Bond Fund (Canada), contributed to performance driven by positive carry over the reporting period. The Fund's positioning within investment grade corporate credit, attained primarily through PIMCO Monthly Income Fund (Canada), PIMCO Low Duration Monthly Income Fund (Canada), PIMCO Unconstrained Bond Fund (Canada), and PIMCO Investment Grade Credit Fund (Canada), contributed to performance as a result of positive carry and the tightening of corporate credit spreads during the reporting period. Exposure to high yield corporate credit and emerging market debt, obtained primarily through PIMCO Low Duration Monthly Income Fund (Canada), PIMCO Monthly Income Fund (Canada), and PIMCO Unconstrained Bond Fund (Canada), contributed to performance due to positive carry and the tightening of high yield and emerging market bond spreads during the reporting period.

Recent Developments

An expected pullback in bank lending and a possible U.S. debt default led to uncertainty in the economic outlook. Risk sentiment was robust despite debt concerns surrounding the U.S. debt ceiling, with the MSCI World finishing the quarter up 6.99% and credit spreads broadly tightening. The Fed hiked its policy rate once more (+25 bps) in the second quarter before pausing, and then signaled that at least two additional hikes will be needed to combat sticky inflation. Meanwhile, global developed central banks continued their hiking cycles and maintained hawkish forward guidance due to persistently stubborn inflation prints.

In our base case, we see a weakening of the U.S. economy in late summer or fall that will likely prompt the Fed to pause rate hikes past July. The Fed is combatting a two-handed U.S. economy, where on one hand inflation and labor market data has remained resilient, and, on the other hand, payroll growth has continued to decelerate and sticky inflation sectors, such as rental inflation, seem to be peaking. However, if market data continues to prove resilient, the Fed may be pressured to keep hiking beyond July, increasing the risk of a sharper slowdown.

In this uncertain environment, we have an up-in-quality bias and favor portfolio flexibility and liquidity as we seek to take advantage of opportunities across global fixed income markets. We are constructive on duration, driven by rates' hedging properties in recessionary environments and top percentile valuations (US 10-Year yield is 99th percentile relative to the last 10 years as of June 30, 2023). We have a slight preference for U.S. duration over most developed ex U.S. countries given stronger disinflationary trends, closer-to-peak policy rates, and higher absolute yields. Agency MBS provides a compelling source of duration with attractive spreads driven by elevated rate volatility, high liquidity, and US government/agency guarantees. In addition, we see pockets of opportunity in select, high-quality emerging markets with attractive carry profiles, benign inflation, credible central banks, and support from commodity gains. Credit remains an important part of the Fund though we are highly selective, preferring up-in-quality segments of global credit markets. Non-agency mortgages continue to be an area of high conviction as fundamentals remain robust, valuations are historically cheap, and supply is waning. Within corporate credit, we prefer investment grade credit, as the segment benefits from attractive yield and carry levels and should be more resilient in a slowing growth environment. However, we are cautious moving down the quality spectrum into high yield, despite strong fundamentals, as the asset class will likely experience more sector dispersion and spread widening in sympathy with a broader risk asset selloff should a recession materialize. Across credit exposures, we prefer defensive over cyclical exposures and believe an active approach to credit selection will be increasingly important as the economic cycle turns. As such, we rotated a portion of our exposures from PIMCO Unconstrained Bond Fund (Canada) into PIMCO Low Duration Monthly Income Fund (Canada). PIMCO Low Duration Monthly Income Fund (Canada) represents a meaningful allocation given its flexible approach, which is well suited for the current market environment as it can dynamically adjust exposures between high-quality securities and sectors, including non-agency mortgages and investment grade corporate credit, and select, high yield corporate as well as emerging market credits.

Management Fees

The Manager is responsible for the operations of the Fund including arranging for the provision of services such as investment management, transfer agency, fund accounting and other administrative services. In consideration for the provision of such services, the Manager is paid a management fee by the Fund that is calculated and accrued daily and is payable monthly. Many of the operating expenses of the Fund are largely payable by the Manager and not by the Fund. Management fees are used to pay trailing commissions, in connection with Series A and Series A (US$) units, to registered dealers for the services and/or advice that they provide to investors.

The breakdown of the services received as a percentage of the management fees are as follows:

	Management Fee	Trailing Commissions paid to Dealers	Investment management and general administration

Series F and Series F (US$)	0.59%	0%	100%
